Due no later than April 30 (Note: Photos are encouraged!)

Project Name: Homewood Facilities Operations Staff Yearbook 2019-2020

Team Members: David Ashwood (UA), Tom Simmons (WSE), Ray Cho (KSAS)
Jenny Yoo (KSAS - senior), Yeena Yoon (KSAS - senior)

Project Overview:

- Current project status:
  - Completed

- Project highlights:
  - Please see attached yearbook document

- Long-term impact:
  - The team views this project as a good starting point on continuous efforts on addressing and recognizing ‘behind the scenes’ staff contribution to JHU. We are hoping this exercise/project, cultivates similar future efforts and discussions.

  - Providing some ways to continuously recognize and seek for input/voice opinion, to the often-underappreciated part of our research and education mission will serve the institution well in addressing diversity and inclusivity related issues among facilities operational staff.

- What was learned:
  - There are so many unsung folks in Plant Operations working hard to keep JHU up and running – even more so in light of the COVID-19 outbreak. These were small portion of the core essential staff members, who came into campus during the shutdown in order to keep building, infrastructure and systems running.

  - Getting buy-ins of large amount of people (even for seemingly noble efforts) is tough. We have had many enthusiastic participation as demonstrated by the document, but turn-out/participation was much lower than anticipated.

- Plans for the future:
  - The team will continuously work on similar yet different efforts to recognize folks working behind the scenes in the future.

- If your grant only covered part of your budget, specify which aspect the grant covered:
  - Project was fully funded by the grant.
